

the intelligence engendered in the mill could be applied to no purpose out of it, would be just as absurd as to imagine that the strength and agility created in the gymnasium, were of no service in the world beyond its walls."

